WHICH THREE WORDS
SUM YOU UP? 'You bought what?' (Usually asked by my family.)
HOW DOES YOUR HOME MAKE YOU FEEL?

On a bad day: like I'm living in a to-do list. On a good day: inspired.

IF YOU WERE A HOME ACCESSORY, WHAT WOULD YOU BE? A boiling water tap. Always at the ready. Just add coffee.

WHAT'S YOUR FAVOURITE APP AND WHY? Instagram – snooping, legitimised.

WHAT WAS THE LAST THING YOU DID TO YOUR HOUSE? I'm in the middle of a loft extension. It's a sore point.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO WITH A SPARE £100? Bribe the builders to finish...

Kerstin Rose
*Writer/stylist,
Industrial luxe*
WHO'S YOUR DESIGN
HERO? Giò Ponti,
because of his elegance
and sense of humour.
WHAT ARE YOU WORKING ON AT THE

MOMENT? A coffee-table book full of amazing interiors with photographer Christian Schaulin.

WHAT'S THE MOST UNUSUAL SHOOT YOU'VE DONE? A hoarder's apartment in Shanghai – we couldn't even get in, we had to rent furniture movers to clear some space.

WHICH SINGLE PIECE WOULD YOU PUT IN YOUR DREAM HOME? An original 1950 Serpentine Sofa by Vladimir Kagan.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO WITH A SPARE £100? Organise a hearty picnic at the beach in Hamburg with some friends.

Mary Weaver
*Livingetc's
Houses editor*
WHICH THREE WORDS
SUM YOU UP? Energetic, enthusiastic, optimistic.
IF YOU WERE A SHADE OF PAINT, WHAT WOULD YOU BE? Farrow

& Ball's Wimborne White. I love it because it's soothing, summery, bright and uplifting.

WHAT'S THE MOST UNUSUAL SHOOT YOU'VE DONE? A romantic old house on the so-called Moon river in Georgia – lovely, but we were bitten alive by swamp bugs!

WHAT WOULD YOU DO WITH A SPARE £100? Lunch at Colbert in Sloane Square, or an impulse buy at my local auction.

IF YOU WERE A HOME ACCESSORY, WHAT WOULD YOU BE? A chandelier – so I could hang around and sparkle all day.

When I try to analyse

what makes a great Livingetc house, it inevitably boils down to a few key ingredients – good bone structure, well-considered colour schemes, a clever mix of design classics and personal pieces – and a touch of humour!

Those witty flourishes are often the final layer that lift a space from the tasteful and stylish to the memorable and fabulous. Looking through this issue, I realise that the details that most resonate with me are those that make me smile. Master of this approach is designer Jonathan Adler, whose NYC apartment (page 34) is a mix of bold interiors, flair and quirky personal touches – just look at the gold boot in the fireplace, or the evil eye artwork hung at the window. And the other homes featured also reflect their owners' sense of fun – from a monochrome Henry VIII portrait in a concrete Hamburg apartment to pink flamingos peeping out of garden foliage in southwest London! Or how about the puddle of carpet at the end of a stair runner in our navy decorating story (page 49) and the burnt matchstick-inspired coat stand (page 32)?

Proof for me that good design should always be taken seriously, but the best also makes us smile...

Big it up

The best chandeliers are always supersized – after all, they're meant to add grandeur to a scheme. This neo-baroque Thea design in Teal from BHS is a stunner and spot-on for a rustic or modern pad. £280 (bhs.co.uk)

Livingetc
SWATCH
WATCH

Dedar's modern, tweed-inspired cotton-mix Chérie in Col. 5 (£156.50 per m, dedar.com) will bring haute couture to your home. It would look great upholstering a special chair. For cushions, add a softer touch by teaming it with Clarke & Clarke's viscose-cotton-mix Antico Aqua (£35 per sq m, clarke-clarke.co.uk) from the Palladio collection.

Blue-sky thinking

Designers Guild's new Cielo wallpaper and complementary floral fabrics are just the things to keep the summer vibe alive. Inspired by Pre-Raphaelite painters, the palette is as broad as that of the artists. Cielo wallpaper, £213 per 12m roll; sofa covered in Caprifoglio linen in Sky, £75 per m; cushions, from left, Brera Lino in Alabaster, £70; Caprifoglio in Sky, £75; Roseo in Sky, £75; and Brera Lino in Celadon, £70 (designersguild.com)

SPACE CRAFT

Gallotti&Radice's futuristic Haumea coffee table by Massimo Castagna looks ready to beam you back to the mother ship. It comes in two sizes with a bronze, black or rust-lacquered wood base and glass top. From £1,236 (gallottiradice.it)

Back to basics

Queen of contemporary style Ilse Crawford has joined forces with Ikea to create Sinnerlig, a wide range of furniture and accessories produced from natural materials. 'The more digital our lives become, the more we crave the physical,' she says, declaring her aim is to 'get human qualities such as warmth, well-being and care into the end product.' Hence lots of wood and cork have been combined to 'engage the senses'. Cork and steel dining table, £250; cork and steel stools, £50 each; and bamboo pendants, £40 each (ikea.com)

TOP SHELF

Cattelan Italia's ingenious Giotto bookcase by Andrea Lucatello resembles a set of ladders, with its solid Canaletto walnut frame and shelves in lacquered wood. A great focal point and a handy display for books and knick-knacks. £2,349 (interiorsupply.co.uk)

Cocktail hour

Drinks cabinets are having a moment and M&S is on the case. The Carraway is elegant and practical, with painted wood doors that swing open to reveal curved storage areas housed within. Cheers! £599 (marksandspencer.com)

GLITTER BUG

Sophia Webster's circus-themed autumn/winter 2015 collection was also influenced by Victor Vasarely's optical illusions. And we can see that inspiration in her crazy and colourful glitter Riko high-tops, which are sure to put a spring in your step on dull days. £295 (sophiawebster.com)

SLEEP EASY

Button & Sprung's Rose double divan fits the bill for a cosy bed suitable for longer autumn nights. This version has a headboard upholstered in Saga cotton velour by Zimmer + Rohde – other fabrics are available. From £895, excluding mattress and headboard; £2,200 as shown, excluding mattress (buttonandsprung.com)

DESIGN CRUSH

This month, we're lusting after...

Farrow & Ball

CLOCKWISE FROM LEFT Feather Grass wallpaper, £110 per 10m roll; Mouse's Back; Arsenic; and Elephant's Breath estate emulsions, all £38 for 2.5l, Farrow & Ball

USP... Mention the words Farrow & Ball and chances are names such as Elephant's Breath and Dead Salmon spring to mind. Since the early Nineties, the paint company synonymous with quirkily evocative nomenclature has been the premium brand for quality emulsions and eggshells.

THE LOWDOWN... Established in Dorset in 1946 by John Farrow and Richard Ball, the company initially targeted trade customers, such as Ford Motors. With consumer interest in interior design escalating, F&B tapped into this change brilliantly, producing paint shades that felt unique, premium and worth obsessing over. Today, it offers 132 paint shades and 320 wallpapers distributed in 67 countries worldwide.

WHY WE LOVE IT... Besides the evocative colour names? In practical terms, such an extensive palette means it's possible to find colours that work in any setting – from classic or modern, inside or out. At Livingetc, we've run the full gamut on decorating shoots over the years, painting halls in Cornforth White, walls in Rectory Red and kitchens in Calamine, all chosen to illustrate the palette's chameleon-like ability to both blend in and pack a style punch. And who hasn't mulled over the subtle differences between Railings and Downpipe (before smiling knowingly at the various pin-accurate YouTube spoofs mocking said obsession)?

NEED TO KNOW... If you're on the hunt for ideas, check out the informative Lunch Club events held with Joa Studholme, F&B's colour consultant. Sign up on the website.

STAR BUY... Look out for the new wallpaper collection launching on 7 September, which comprises three designs – Feather Grass, Hornbean and Blotsma – all inspired by F&B's Dorset roots.

For more info, visit farrow-ball.com

Dish of the day

For fun, relaxed autumn dining, check out Laura Ashley's earthenware Tomato dish, available from September. It's both kitsch and useful – so serve with a smile... £55 (lauraashley.com)

Style edit

The new collection from John Lewis absolutely nails the whole post-recession opulent luxe thing that's been brewing of late. The five-star-hotel touches – cocktail cabinets and chaise longues – all sit happily alongside contemporary pieces, with everything pulled together with jewel-coloured velvets, offset with rich parquet and brass. Puccini drinks cabinet, £1,999; and large Odyssey sofa, £2,000 (johnlewis.com)

JOIN THE CUE

For those with cash to burn (the rest of us can add it to our 'when-I-win-the-lottery' list), Marc Sadler's T1 crystal pool table for Teckell is a must. The top comes in 24 colours, in cloth designed to replicate the friction of traditional baize. Approx £28,350 (chaplins.co.uk)

California calling

Stroll into The Conran Shop this autumn and you could end up riding off on one of Martone Cycling Co's iconic city bikes. Long popular over the pond, they're now available in the UK, bringing us a breezy Southern California vibe. From £995 for this men's model in Pacific Blue (conranshop.co.uk)

Bedroom bliss

As part of an ongoing collaboration with luxury British bedmaker Vispring, French designer Terence Mesguich Jacquemin has created a collection of 81 luxury fabrics to cover the company's bespoke headboards and divans. As Monsieur Jacquemin explains, he has 'sourced the fabrics – British wool, Scottish leather, Italian velvet and Belgian linen – from the best mills' in order to guarantee the creation of a stylish, comfortable bedroom scheme. Herald Superb king-size mattress with Prestige divan, £4,625; and Muses headboard covered in Tick fabric 2057, £1,440 (vispring.co.uk)

BAG ONE!

On the hunt for autumn accessories? Look no further than the rich tones of William & Son's supple calfskin Bruton totes in Pomegranate and Orange. Forming part of the new in-house designed Bruton bag collection, they have been launched to coincide with the recent opening of the company's flagship store in Bruton Street, Mayfair. It-bag status guaranteed... £895 each (williamandson.com)

SPRINKLE OF GENIUS

There's no excuse for house-plant carnage with this copper watering can by Haws. It's so good-looking, you'll want to keep it on permanent display. It comes with a removable brass rose for a finer spray and is available from new outfit Wood & Meadow, which offers a curated collection inspired by nature. £49 (woodandmeadow.com)

High flyer

Designed in 1975 by Meinhard von Gierkan for the VIP lounge of Berlin's Tegel Airport, Walter Knoll's Berlin chair is about to be re-issued. A classic combo of steel and supple leather, it will be available from late August. Approx £2,270 (walterknoll.de)

ROUGH LUXE

Looking for a clever and speedy way to introduce an industrial vibe? This amazing Warehouse Brick Wall panel by DesResDesign may just fit the bill. The imagery is digitally printed on to high-quality vinyl paper with an embossed surface that resembles the texture of linen and is colourfast and washable. £313 (desresdesign.co.uk)

Boudoir bliss

Snazzy new bed linen is the sure-fire way to revamp your sleep zone. Harlequin + Bedeck's Paradise design in Lagoon, a digitally printed interpretation of tropical flora and fauna, adapted from Harlequin's eye-catching Amazilia collection, is full of colour, pattern and a little jungle fever. Double cotton/sateen duvet cover, £95; Oxford cotton/percale pillowcases, £22 each; and cotton cushions, £45 each (bedeckhome.com)

STYLE SAFARI

Animal prints are still in vogue, with plenty more on the horizon for autumn/winter. Next nods to the trend with a smart watch with a faux-pony skin strap that for all the world looks just like leopard. Team with a matching coat and hat at your peril... £24 (next.co.uk)

METAL GURU

Copper adds a touch of warmth, however sparingly you use it. House of Fraser's Casa Couture collection features gorgeous metallic accessories, which can be used en masse or as accent notes – Livingetc loves these Liliana pendants. £150 each (houseoffraser.co.uk)

SOOTHE SILHOUETTE

This lamp is a stylish piece of art by day, but it's at night that it comes into its own, providing just enough illumination to feed or change a baby, or help settle an older child. The intricate laser-cut design is backed with vellum and can be framed in other colours to suit any décor. £70 (noahandthebear.com)

Canine chic

Ensure your pooch is as well-dressed and warm as you this autumn by treating them to a fashion-forward Tulla cashmere dog sweater from Ruby Rufus. Available online from late August. £85 (rubyrufus.com)

Relax in style

A spacious, modern interior cries out for a large-scale sofa/chaise with long, low, lean lines and plenty of modular versatility. Arlo & Jacob's Philo Chaise Sofa, upholstered in this warm wool/chenille-mix in Graffiti Birch, is smart yet comfy, with wraparound seat cushions and sabre arms to nod off on. From £1,955 (arloandjacob.com)

Jessica Russell Flint

WHO? Lifelong doodler Jessica became an illustrator after graduating from Central Saint Martins. An interiors label followed in May 2013.

WHY? Her unique style captures quirky character traits through clever use of colour and texture. Jessica's wide range of interiors products are now available in more than 40 shops worldwide.

WHERE DO YOU FIND ARTISTIC INSPIRATION?

'Life... Friends... Humour. The expression in animals' eyes and the textures of their feathers or skins are hugely inspirational. Different surfaces always fascinate me - I'm constantly snapping leaves and plants on my iPhone and using them in projects.'

YOUR MOTTO IS 'CAN YOU SEE BEYOND THE END OF YOUR NOSE?' HOW DOES THAT PLAY OUT?

'It's the ability to see past the mundane, to laugh at the hilarity of certain situations and to see the bigger picture.'

WHAT DOES YOUR BESPOKE SERVICE OFFER?

'I can produce fabrics and wallpapers to order through my website. A client can choose a design and ask for any item to be upholstered, from a piece of vintage furniture to a stylish dog bed.'

WHAT'S NEXT?

'I've also just completed an exclusive range of gift wrap and cards, which is being launched in Harrods from September and Christmas decorations are available from October. Watch this space!'

Building BLOCKS

The rule-breaking trend of the Eighties is back for 2015 in a blaze of colour-clashing glory – it's time to say ciao to the Memphis movement. One of the most ground-breaking styles to come out of Milan, Memphis was a revolt against minimalism, opting instead for bold shades, dazzling geometrics and gravity-defying angles. This year, a wave of non-conformist design swept down the spring/summer catwalk: Roksanda Ilincic teamed fluoro-brights with sculptural silhouettes, while Loewe's runway was filled with blocks of uneven colour. Homeware also ignores convention by combining vibrant hues and uncomplicated shapes. Seletti's Bauchair slots the look together and Darkroom's So Sottsass plate is a homage to Ettore, father of the Memphis look. Bravi!

LOUIS POULSEN PH5 PENDANT LIGHT

In 2008, the classic PH5 pendant celebrated its 50th anniversary with the release of the vibrant-coloured PH50. Then, in 2013, to echo contemporary pastel hues and complement modern surfaces, the PH5 was given this matt finish. PH5 aluminium pendant in Pale Rose and Green, £510, Poul Henningsen for Louis Poulsen at Aram Store

KNOLL WASSILY CHAIR

Marcel Breuer designed the first tubular-steel chair in 1925 while he was an apprentice at Bauhaus. It was initially upholstered in canvas, but the leather version introduced in 1950 is the most recognisable. To reintroduce the original, Knoll once again released the chair with canvas upholstery in 2013. Wassily canvas and tubular-steel chair, £1,212, Marcel Breuer for Knoll at The Conran Shop

EILEEN GRAY E1027 ADJUSTABLE TABLE

Originally made in 1927, the adjustable steel and glass side table was re-released earlier this year in a new Matt Black finish with three variants of glass top. E1027 adjustable table in Matt Black lacquered tubular frame with clear glass, from £487, Eileen Gray for Aram Store

ALESSI JUICY SALIF

A quintessential design from 1990, the Juicy Salif juicer celebrated its 25th birthday at this year's Salone del Mobile in Milan with a limited-edition run of 299 cast-bronze versions. Juicy Salif juicer in Bronze, £850, Philippe Starck for Alessi

ERCOL LOVE SEAT

The first Love seat was launched in 1956 as part of the Windsor collection – with its curved seat back and spindle verticals, it's one of the company's most iconic pieces. More recently, British designer Margaret Howell teamed up with Ercol to relaunch the collection – in 2009, the Love seat was given this dip-dye, ombre paint effect. Originals elm and beech Love seat, £735, Lucian Ercolani for Ercol

DUALIT TOASTER

To commemorate its 70th anniversary, Brit stalwart Dualit has designed a limited edition of its famous toaster. This four-slice model features key elements from classic designs, ranging from the sleek shape of the Forties originals to 2015's energy-saving electrics. Brass four-slice toaster, £199.15, Dualit

IKEA LÖVBACKEN SIDE TABLE

Kick-starting the packaging revolution back in 1956, the Lövbacken side table (originally named the Lövet) was Ikea's first piece of furniture sold as a flat pack. Re-released in 2013, it is faithful to the original design, right down to its measurements. Lövbacken poplar-veneer side table, £40, Ikea

ANGLEPOISE ORIGINAL 1227 DESK LAMP

Designed by George Carwardine and first released in 1935, the Original 1227 desk lamp has been revamped in collaboration with many distinguished designers over its 80-year history. For 2015, Anglepoise launched a version using Eley Kishimoto patterns, inspired by the Grade II-listed Centre Point building in London. Original 1227 desk lamp Central Link pattern edition, from £200, George Carwardine and Eley Kishimoto for Centre Point at Anglepoise

JEAN PROUVÉ BUREAU DESK

Having made its debut back in 1946, the Bureau was re-released by Vitra in 2014 in partnership with G-Star RAW as part of a larger Prouvé Raw office range. The materials used pay tribute to the origins of the furnishings and the bygone industrial age. Bureau Métallique melamine and metal desk, from £3,070, Jean Prouvé in partnership with G-Star RAW for Vitra

THONET RANGE 214 BENTWOOD CHAIR

Embodying the spirit of Viennese café culture, Thonet's coffee house chair was first released in 1859; in 1980, the Knot version hit the shops; while a Pure Materials (using locally sourced wood) collection was launched this year. The design is considered the most successful mass-produced product in history. Bentwood 214K Knot beech chair, from £1,035, Michael Thonet for Thonet

FRITZ HANSEN SERIES 7 CHAIR

To celebrate the 60th anniversary of this iconic Fritz Hansen design, two special editions have just been released. The Series 7, which first came out in 1955, is now available in Pale Pink with gold-plated legs, left, or Dark Blue with powder-coated legs. Series 7 model 3107 ash and steel chair, £523, Arne Jacobsen for Fritz Hansen at Harrods

LE CREUSET CASSEPOLE

The renowned French cookware company has reissued the Elysees Yellow casserole to mark its 60th anniversary. This colourway was first introduced in 1955 – Marilyn Monroe owned a set in the bright hue that was later sold at Christie's. Bloom Signature cast-iron casserole, from £145, Le Creuset

A full-page photograph of a man walking a small, fluffy brown dog on a leash. The man is wearing a dark blue V-neck sweater over a collared shirt, light-colored trousers, and sunglasses. He is standing on a sidewalk in front of a stone building with a dark wooden door. A street sign above the door reads 'EAST STREET'. A black lantern-style light fixture is mounted on the wall to the right of the door. The scene is brightly lit, casting shadows on the ground.

Jonathan Adler's bold take on modern glamour has revolutionised interiors. What's he up to next? We check out his Greenwich Village apartment to find out...

Words - Andréa Childs

Home profile

THE OWNERS Designer Jonathan Adler, his husband Simon Doonan, a writer and creative ambassador for Barneys New York, and their rescue dog Foxy Lady.

THE PROPERTY A duplex apartment in Greenwich Village, New York. The entrance floor has a living room, TV den, kitchen, dining room, office, bathroom and guest bedroom with en-suite bathroom. Upstairs, there's the master bedroom with en-suite bathroom.

HALLWAY

The entrance to the apartment provides a sneak glimpse of what's to come: eclectic furnishings, statement lighting and bold colours set against an all-white background.

GET THE LOOK The orange lacquer Turner cabinet, gold bird figurines and cushion are all by Jonathan Adler. The Seventies pendant light is by Gaetano Sciolari.

LIVING ROOM

What makes Jonathan's 'unbridled, eclectic' style work? The quiet rigour of a restricted colour palette (blue, green, orange) and the repetition of key motifs (here's looking at you...).

GET THE LOOK The Giant Sputnik chandelier, turquoise Baxter sofa, green Peking sofa, Big Hair Bob cushion, giant brass horn and Lucite obelisks are all by Jonathan Adler. The black and white Tulip chair is by Eero Saarinen for Knoll. The round chrome table is by Xavier Feal. The Michael Jackson head was a flea-market find. The framed eyes artworks are by American artist John-Paul Philippe. The wall lights above the doorway are by Remo Saraceni. The artwork above the mantelpiece is by Geoff McFetridge. The eyes in the fireplace were painted by Danny Balgley.

'My motto is more, more, more!'

FIREPLACE DETAIL

'We're both visual thrill-seekers – nothing is "blah",' says Jonathan. 'What's important, though, is that everything we have means something to us. We surround ourselves with art made by friends or collections we love.'

GET THE LOOK The glass heads are vintage Italian. The gold boot is a vintage find from Palm Beach and the evil eyes on the wall are from Mexico.

DINING ROOM →

'This giant foot is really making my choppers tingle at the moment!' says Jonathan. It certainly adds a grounded touch to the lofty space.

GET THE LOOK The dining table is by George Nelson. The Richard Schultz chairs are covered in Double Triangles fabric by Alexander Girard for Maharam. The Bridget rug and giant lucite hand are by Jonathan Adler. The globe lights are custom made. The curtains are from American interiors specialist Kravet. The giant foot is by Gaetano Pesce.

says designer, potter and tastemaker Jonathan Adler, laughing. 'Life is short, so do more, make more, have more...' Yes, the man synonymous with a new kind of American glamour – refined, luxe, yet tongue-in-cheek risqué (those Prozac-labelled cookie jars and embroidered 'Lust' cushions) – isn't renowned for his restrained aesthetic. Yet, there's the heart of a minimalist quietly beating beneath his brash, bold statements. 'When I design objects, I make them as pared down as possible,' he says. 'It's only when you put them all together that the room explodes!'

Jonathan's New York apartment, which he shares with his equally creative husband Simon Doonan (who designed the window displays at Barneys New York for 25 years before becoming the store's creative ambassador), is a riot of colour, surfaces, details and stuff. 'When I decorate for other people, I tend to be a lot more muted,' says Jonathan. 'For myself, it's eclectic and unbridled. My poor husband is very patient, but we're both visual thrill-seekers. We have a shared sensibility and a high tolerance for visual stimuli. But the décor is all mine. Simon has always given me free reign just to go for it...'

What makes it work is Jonathan's ability to put the brakes on where it's needed, so the furnishings may be bright, but the walls, ceilings and floors are white. The 'wowzer' lights draw the eye up to the ornate vaulted ceilings. The super-long drapes emphasise the tall windows. 'This building was designed at the beginning of the 20th century and the architecture is really grand. We wanted to keep the bones of the place quite true, while creating a flexible space in which I can play,' explains Jonathan. 'This is our home, but it's also where I road-test all of my designs. I move things around; I'll bring home a new chair to check the seat is at the right height. As a designer, I need to live with my products, to sit on the furniture and touch the ceramics, so this is really a snapshot of a moment. It could all look different again next week!'

It sounds ephemeral, even transient, but as always with Jonathan, things aren't necessarily what they seem. The couple have lived here for nearly 20 years. Simon originally owned a one-bedroom apartment in the building. After meeting on a blind date, Jonathan moved in with him and then bought the adjoining apartment when it came up for sale a few years later. They knocked the two properties together to create this 2,500 sq ft living space. 'By New York standards, it's big, but we've organised it so that we use every inch,' says Jonathan. 'We entertain a lot – not New York business entertaining, but our random bunch of bohemian ne'er-do-well friends. We have brekky in the dining room every morning. We're in the living room every day for our regular game of Ping-Pong, in which I always vanquish Simon. And, of course, the TV den never goes unused. Our tastes are very grim – we watch murder documentaries.' (This from the man who won't allow the colour mauve in the house 'because I find it sad')

Jonathan's palette is a slightly out-of-whack mix of burnt umber and chartreuse, Jaffa orange and celestial blue. 'I like blue that's blue, orange that's orange, green that's green,' he says excitedly. It's the clarity and tonality of these shades that hang the look together – colours picked up and repeated from room to room, zigzags and houndstooth checks adding a mod touch to monochrome. 'Growing up, I had a fab grandmother – a kind of eccentric Auntie Mame character – and her house was filled with unexpected bits and bobs,' says Jonathan. 'It stimulated my imagination and I hope that's what this pad does.'

Rest assured, our minds are blown...

Home truths

WHAT'S YOUR SECRET TALENT?

Simon: I'm surprisingly sportif.

Didn't see that coming, did you?

WHO WOULD PLAY YOU IN A

FILM? Simon: Eddie Redmayne or Enrique Iglesias, who don't look remotely like me, but best to go with somebody cute, right?

Jonathan: vintage Jean-Paul Belmondo.

WHAT'S YOUR BIGGEST FEAR?

Jonathan: I'm pretty fearless.

FAVOURITE FANCY-DRESS

COSTUME? Simon: Years ago, I shared a studio with Susan Nininger, who designed Whitney Houston's stage ensembles in The Bodyguard. Susan lent me a fab, light-up mega-costume. Very Leigh Bowery, before Leigh Bowery, with a huge battery pack. #hernia.

EXTROVERT OR INTROVERT?

Jonathan: More introverted than you would think. Simon: If you pay me enough, I'll do anything.

WHAT DO YOU SING IN THE SHOWER? Jonathan: Cheerleader by Omi. Simon: Nasty Girl by Vanity 6.

WHERE DO YOU GO TO FIND PEACE? Simon: We paddleboard on Shelter Island. We're going to train Foxy lady to sit on the board.

'I like to road-test and move my things round. This could all look different next week!'

LIVING ROOM

The Ed Paschke painting was originally commissioned for the Playboy Mansion. Now, it overlooks this playful corner, complete with mod-style cushions and a table supported by ram heads.

GET THE LOOK The Aries cocktail table, printed cushions and rug are all by Jonathan Adler.

DINING ROOM ↑ DETAIL

'We've used every inch of the apartment,' says Jonathan. That includes the margins of the main spaces, like this careful arrangement on one side of the dining room. The result: every casual glance turns into a must-see moment.

GET THE LOOK The artwork is by Sante Graziani. The glass-top table is by Willy Daro.

MASTER BEDROOM ↑

Jonathan's mix-and-match style turns the usual bed-linen-headboard combo into something completely out of the ordinary, with nautical rope motifs vying for attention with baroque patterning.

GET THE LOOK The slate Grasscloth wallpaper, Templeton bed and Southampton duvet are all by David Jonathan Adler. The rug is by David Hicks. The stools are vintage finds. The Harmon Manor II orange fabric is by Schumacher.

← BATHROOM

'I've always loved the throw-it-all-togetherness of English decorating and I think that's what this bathroom has,' says Jonathan. The brass H hung on the wall is a vintage Hermès display from Barneys New York.

GET THE LOOK The oversized bulb light and brass table in the shower are vintage finds.

KEY FEATURE Strap-work ceiling

Ornamental plasterwork, as seen on the barrel vault ceiling in Jonathan's dining room, dates back to the 16th century and can be found in many fine period homes. The designer cleverly draws attention to it with show-stopping light fittings, then echoes the pattern in his rugs. Hayles & Howe (haylesandhowe.co.uk) specialises in all kinds of strap-work ceilings – prices will depend on the job, including where the project is, size, ornament, cornice, etc, but as a guide, expect to pay approx £500 per sq m.

THE WONDERFUL EVERYDAY

Quinine from the Congo

Bitter Orange from Tanzania

Lemon Thyme from Provence

Lemons from Sicily

We Love
Gin & Tonic

Love it a lot. Love it so much we were worried about it. We were worried the gin was being mistreated, being smothered with mainstream tonic that masks its delicate flavours with artificial sweeteners like sickly saccharin. Gin deserves better, we thought, so we started Fever-Tree. We personally went to the ends of the earth to find the best natural ingredients for a tonic water. Quinine from the Congo, bitter orange from Tanzania and subtle botanicals from Provence. The result is a tonic like no other, one that sets the complex flavours of gin free.

So, if $\frac{3}{4}$ of your gin and tonic is tonic, make sure you use the best.

Be relaxed.
Be cosy.
Be comfortable.

Be in the right bed for you.

In today's fast paced world the value of a great night's sleep is more important than ever. But how do you find the bed that's right for you? Our unique Comfort Station™ Adaptive system is designed to help you do just that.

First it adjusts to different firmness levels to find the one that's just right for you, then our exclusive BodiTrak™ technology uses a unique pressure sensing surface to identify how your body is affected by the way you sleep and will show you where you need support.

With your personal profile we can then help you choose the perfect mattress type that will provide the support you need for a better night's sleep.

Visit our Comfort Station™ Adaptive in store or book an appointment online at bensonsforbeds.co.uk.

As autumn approaches, it's time to think about going back to school, booking that evening class, or just knuckling down and sorting out all that home admin that's been piling up over the summer. A well-organised (and aesthetically pleasing) office area is essential for inspiring you to get all those little jobs done and now is the ideal time to rethink your work zone.

Struggling to decide on a place to start? Then you should consult innovative online interiors destination Houseology.com. This new website not only showcases fabulous collections of furniture, lighting and accessories, all available to buy, but also offers guidance and inspiration curated by a team of professional interior designers. Between them, they have the tools and techniques to help you achieve the looks you desire.

One trick that's crucial to good design is the creation of a moodboard and the Houseology.com design and tech teams have collaborated to create a unique online tool to help you devise your perfect scheme. Simply upload an image of the room you're working on, then get inventive, adding colour swatches, hero pieces and accessories to build a visual reference for the room of your dreams. You'll then be able to amend it as you go, keeping track of your budget, and also share it with family and friends.

With practical advice, design how-tos, inspirational ideas, informative blogs from industry insiders and useful videos, Houseology.com is your one-stop destination for all things home.

With drama in its design DNA and innovative ideas bouncing off the walls, there's nothing tame about the style of Graz and Nick's family home

Photography – Paul Massey
Styling – Mary Weaver
Words – Jenny Tucker

LIVING ROOM

'Nick and I don't consciously mix styles,' says Graz. 'We simply buy what we love. But mid-century design is one of our favourites, so we can't help being drawn to that era.'

GET THE LOOK The vintage Murano chandelier and stainless-steel sm05 chair by Cees Braakman are from Atomic Antiques. The green leather sofa is Fifties Danish.

Home profile

THE OWNERS Nick Darken, a creative partner at digital agency KBS+Albion, his wife Graz, an interior consultant and founder of boutique scarf brand Slices London, and their sons Teal, 13, and Layfe, 11, and daughter Cyan, nine, plus husky puppy Bear. THE PROPERTY A Victorian terrace in north London. The lower-ground floor includes a kitchen-diner, studio and snug, with the living room and library above. The master bedroom suite is on the first floor and the kids' rooms and a bathroom are upstairs.

LIBRARY

This is where the Darkens go for some peace and quiet. 'I often retreat in here on my own,' admits Nick. 'But one by one, the kids will find me. And usually the dog too.'

GET THE LOOK The reclaimed parquet flooring is from Architectural Forum. This is the Kennedee sofa by John-Marie Massaud for Poltrona Frau. The rug is from House Doctor.

SNUG

An original part of the house is radically transformed using pattern and shape.

LANDING

 The Beat pendant in the foreground is by Tom Dixon.

Most of us love a touch of drama in our lives, but in the north London home of Nick and Graz Darken, a stellar performance is practically oozing from the walls. And, at every turn, in every corner, there is something spectacular going on. Whether it's an art piece from a burgeoning young talent or a taxidermy rabbit on a bookshelf, the overall effect is simply stunning. 'When people come to our house, they often don't leave that quickly,' says Graz, with a laugh. 'They usually get sidetracked by something that's caught their eye.'

With a creative background in graphics, Graz met Nick at design school in Melbourne, Australia. The couple moved to the UK more than 17 years ago, bringing with them an allegiance to the unusual and distinctive. 'We like to think that when we buy things, we'll have them forever,' says Nick. 'We're not ones to say, "Let's just get it for now".' So when we do choose something, it has to be particularly appealing – something we'll love for life.'

'We like interiors with their own story,' says Graz, 'and the more obscure the better. If something grabs my attention, I'll do a bit of research into its background [check out the fab piece of graffiti that graces son Teal's room at the top of the house – up-and-coming artists are one of Graz's special interests]. I love to collect things too,' she adds. In fact, it was collecting that kick-started Graz's design business, Slices London. After stumbling across a box of Victorian microscopic slides at a sale some 12 years ago, she turned the images into artwork and fabric for scarves, many of which have been spotted draped across the shoulders of celebrities including Kate Moss and Emma Watson.

And so it was inevitable that this Victorian home, bought in 2006, would evolve into something gloriously unique. But first, the house had to wait in line while it was painted white throughout and the children had time to grow up. 'I'd just given birth to our daughter,' says Graz, 'and so we had three kids under the age of four. In practical terms, it meant the renovation had to be put on hold. It wasn't until six years later that things really got started.'

After collaborating with architect Irenie Cossey and Emmett Russell Architects, the property was gutted and a rear basement extension and a four-level side extension were added. Then, 18 months later, the fun bit began. 'To be honest, we found the interiors part a doddle because we'd lived in the house for so long and we knew exactly how we wanted it,' admits Nick. 'Certain things were intrinsic to our plans – for example, we're obsessed with lighting and usually have at least six lights in each room and we were adamant that the house had to be practical and that meant tons of storage space for all the clutter.'

Graz, with her tongue firmly in cheek, designed each room with a sense of humour, even though the joke occasionally dipped its toe in darker waters. 'Although the house works as a whole, we wanted each space to have its own identity, so you might use a different room for a different mood – Nick loves hiding away in the library for some time out, while the kitchen is our gathering spot. I'd always say, never be afraid to mix contrasting textures within the one area – it adds interest. And I love to pick pieces that make people stop and ponder. Overall, I'm not girly – I tend to go for a more masculine design and friends say this house could be a bachelor's pad. Ever since our daughter was small, we've said to her, "We don't like pink, do we...?" Now she reckons she's the most Gothic of us all.'

So, as a home created for dramatic effect, this urban showcase stretches the boundaries of interior design so things get that bit curiouser... and curiouser.

DINING AREA →

With deep light wells installed, a dingy basement becomes a bright family space.

'It's where we all gather to hang out and create chaos,' says Graz.

GET THE LOOK The table was custom-built with reclaimed oak from a French barn and positioned on a steel frame. The DSW Eames chairs are from a vintage dealer. The industrial lights were once part of Heathrow's Concorde hanger and were sourced from Trainspotters. Graz and Nick specially designed and commissioned the banquette seating.

Home truths

GRAZ, WHAT'S THE BEST THING ABOUT AUTUMN? Kicking the leaves. It makes me smile every time.

IF YOU WERE A SUPERHERO, WHICH ONE WOULD YOU BE? Definitely Wonder Woman. Just for the nostalgia and, of course, I can't resist the gold cuffs.

HOW DO YOU KEEP POSITIVE? I take myself along to look at inspiring art.

And I meet and support new designers. It's a passion of mine.

GIVE US A MEMORY THAT MAKES YOU SMILE... Drawing with my granddad and sewing with my mum – she was a talented seamstress.

WHAT'S YOUR ULTIMATE TREAT? To buy a chair.

AND YOUR IDEAL WAY TO SPEND AN EVENING WITH NICK? Buying a chair!

KITCHEN

The scheme was actually kick-started by the wall clock. 'We had it first and wanted it to be a feature,' says Nick. 'So the stainless-steel island was specially positioned to highlight it. Unfortunately, the island was so bulky, it had to be craned in through the back of the house!'

GET THE LOOK The Eastern European train station clock is from Trainspotters. This is a Bulthaup island. The Fifties bar stools are by Frank Guille for Kandya. The exposed concrete floor is by Lazenby.

↓ MASTER BEDROOM ↘

Offbeat accessories give this scheme a quirky edge. 'We may have a slightly warped sense of humour, but we love things that make us smile,' says Graz.

GET THE LOOK The table lamp from Atomic Antiques is teamed with a custom-made fringed shade. This is a Goldsmiths quilt by Custhom. The Prom Queen 3 painting is by Sara Berman. The RAR rocker is by Charles and Ray Eames for Vitra.

IDEAS toSTEAL

Inject drama into a period setting with bravura colours and offbeat shapes

KEY SURFACES

KEY FEATURE Tiled chimney breast

Even in the original Victorian part of the house, Graz and Nick couldn't help making their own distinctive mark. Adding a subtle element of contrast to the period corning, the tiled chimney breast looks both retro (include a shag-pile carpet and the scheme would be fit for Austin Powers) and contemporary (white, metro-style tiles with darker grout are still a key look). Using one of the alcoves as a log store is clever too. These are Fired Earth (firedearth.com) tiles – for similar, check out its White Matt Architecture, £47.52 per sq m.

industrial luxe

It may have bare concrete surfaces and utilitarian fittings, but Ulla and Mathias's Hamburg home has a cosy vibe thanks to warm wood, flowing curtains and an abundance of sofas

Photography – Christian Schaulin
Words and styling – Kerstin Rose

Home profile

THE OWNERS Ulla Jahn, owner of interiors store Func.furniture, which specialises in rare 20th-century designs, and her husband Mathias, who runs content marketing agency Sould.

THE PROPERTY An open-plan, first-floor apartment in Hamburg, Germany, with a kitchen/dining area, office area, living area, two bedrooms and two bathrooms. Plus, there are two small terraces outside.

LIVING AREA

'We love to lie down and relax,' says Mathias, laughing. 'That's why there are so many sofas – it's important for us to feel we can take some time out.'

GET THE LOOK The 606 Universal shelving system is by Dieter Rams for Vitsoe. The blue Lifesteel sofa, leather chaise longue and grey lounge are all by Antonio Citterio for Flexform. The tripod lamp was custom-built by Munich artist Pepe, using headlamps on a tripod stand. The rug was custom-made by Carmen Gloger for Hamburg interiors store Sleeping Dogs.

'Our home might appear industrial, but it's totally gemütlich

[German for "cosy"], declares Mathias Jahn, when describing the open-plan apartment he shares with his wife Ulla. And he's right. Constructed two years ago in a complex near the River Elbe, the flat was originally designed to be a five-room new build. But after viewing almost 50 other properties, the Jahns decided to take the place over in its raw, undecorated, no-room state.

'We really wanted to buy a loft space,' admits Mathias, 'but we just couldn't find the right thing. Then we realised that if we kept the basic layout, we could divide it up into a collection of spacious zones and create a single hall/passageway to connect the two main living areas. We told the developers to stop where they were, leaving all the cables, pipes, ceilings and floors exposed, so we had the ultimate shell to turn into something of our own.'

Ulla adds, 'It was such a unique opportunity – a crude starting point, but we liked that. We decided to polish the concrete floor, but we didn't touch the ceiling and even left all the scribbled numbers and notes written by builders on the concrete columns. The developers thought they would be painted over, but because we didn't go down the conventional route, we've ended up keeping them.'

After meticulously compiling a huge moodboard on Pinterest and collecting style ideas from all over the world, the couple refined their vision to develop a design that flows seamlessly as one.

'There's just the two of us living here,' explains Ulla, 'so we worked together to get a home that is exactly right for us. This meant a huge kitchen, where we can have our friends over – they all congregate around the central island. But if it's just the two of us and I'm in the kitchen, I only have to look through the hallway and I can see Mathias in the living room. There's a real sense of unity here and that's a lovely way to live.'

Either side of the hallway are Ulla and Mathias's separate bedrooms – both cleverly concealed behind a row of wooden doors, which also house cupboards. 'You have to know which is the right door to go through,' jokes Mathias, 'otherwise you step in among our clothes.'

Another his 'n' hers accessory is the Eames Tandem Shell Seating System Bench, with each chair facing their respective bedrooms. 'Not only does it look great,' says Mathias, 'we keep our keys, Ulla's handbag and all our stuff on it and it's handy when we need to put on our shoes.'

It's the sharp detail that makes this home so alluring. Take the geometric tiles in the kitchen, for example, which were sourced from Morocco and chosen after the Jahns dabbled with half a dozen different colourways. The couple installed them like a carpet runner, positioning the freestanding stainless-steel island and the Knoll dining table in the middle. Then they extended the tiles to climb up one wall. Why? 'Well... for effect and for fun,' says Mathias. 'Striking, don't you think?'

Other touches of daring are the whimsical art choices and lush shades of inky blues on the walls using natural pigments produced from the Le Corbusier spectrum by specialist Swiss company kt.Color. 'It was important the apartment felt homely and welcoming,' says Mathias. 'The wall tones are so rich, they almost look like velvet. And because we didn't want the space to come across as aloof or sparse, we've added lots of warm wood, curtains – for the first time in our lives – and rather a lot of sofas. Ulla likes to read on the chaise longue, while the huge sofa is for lying down and watching TV – we love Downton Abbey!'

Taking an urban concrete-encased apartment and turning it into a cosy, inviting home is a hard act to pull off, but Mathias and Ulla have got it right without a doubt. Surely, there are some downsides? 'The one dilemma is it's so comfortable, I never want to go out,' says Ulla, laughing. What a lovely problem to have.

HALLWAY

The American walnut-veneer cupboards are accessible from both sides and also cleverly conceal the entrance to each bedroom.

Home truths

WOODS OR SEASIDE? Ulla: 'Seaside. I love to collect shells and put them in my flowerpots, so I can't see any brown soil.'

Mathias: 'Anywhere that has no shells!'

FAVOURITE CITY? Ulla: 'London – so much creativity and the people are so polite.'

Mathias: 'Hamburg. It's a bit like... you know... London.'

WHAT'S THE BEST VIEW YOU'VE EVER SEEN? Ulla: 'From a little hotel in Paris, which overlooks Ladurée.'

Mathias: 'The harbour view from our last flat in Hamburg.'

IF YOU WERE AN ANIMAL, WHAT WOULD YOU BE? Ulla: 'My friend Tom's dog – he gets fed the best organic food.'

Mathias: 'A Jaguar, as it's also a car.'

WHAT MAKES YOU HAPPY? Ulla:

'Searching for special design pieces and finding a really good restaurant.'

Mathias: 'Accompanying Ulla on the above.'

TELL US A SECRET! Ulla: 'I'm a fan of Queen Elizabeth. But don't tell anybody.'

Mathias: 'I like to put marshmallows in my hot chocolate.'

KITCHEN

From the eye-popping floor tiles to the vintage neon signage and the 'come-gather' central island, this is an area that demands attention. As Ulla says, 'Why be boring?'

GET THE LOOK The Passage sign, taken from a famous cinema in Hamburg, had been in Ulla's shop for nearly 18 months, but as soon as the couple bought the apartment, they knew it would be a perfect fit. The 3-D-effect Mosaic del Sur tiles are from zementfliesen.net. The central island was custom-made by Hamburg kitchen specialist Hummel Küchenwerk.

DINING AREA

'This is our central hub,' says Ulla, 'where we gather with friends and Mathias and I sit to chat. The fact the apartment is so open means no one is ever far away.'

GET THE LOOK The Florence Knoll table desk and Eames upholstered moulded plywood DCM dining chairs are all from funo. Furniture. The pendant light is the PH Artichoke lamp by Poul Henningsen for Louis Poulsen. The Einstein Tries to Rescue Kennedy After He Was Gunned Down artwork on the wall is by Florian Borkenhagen.

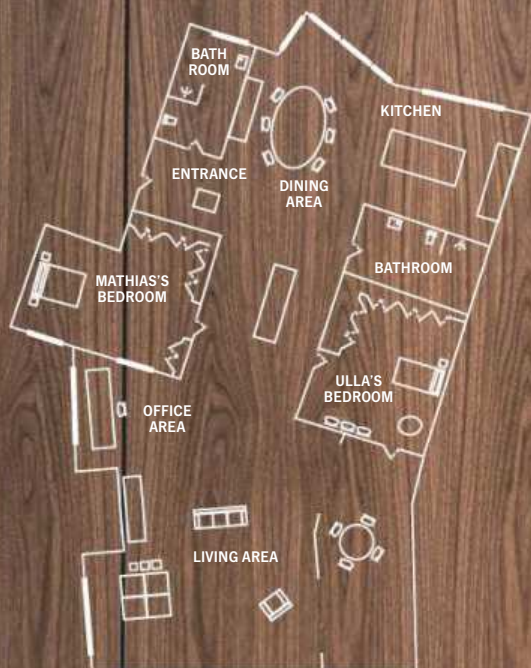

BATHROOM

Dark tiles, a grey basin and a striking orange cabin trolley from Austrian Airlines push this unique space way beyond the confines of the usual white porcelain approach.

GET THE LOOK These are Mews tiles by Barber & Osgerby for Mutina bought from local bath specialist Flagstone Hamburg. The hand basin was custom-made by Hamburg firm Concrete Home Design. The mixer tap is by Arne Jacobsen for Vola.

There is something simple and uncompromising about polished concrete, with a purity in its architectural lines. Ulla and Mathias mixed raw materials and textures here, with the rough, unfinished concrete on the ceiling contrasting with the crafted wood cupboards and the glass-like smoothness of the floor. Once sealed, a polished concrete floor requires little more than a weekly sweep and mop. Pretty flamingos...

...designer butterflies and hot pops of Miami-style colour transport Cheryl and Andy's period home from city to summer all year round

Home profile

THE OWNERS Cheryl Taylor, a breast-cancer surgeon, her husband Andy, a town planner turned property developer, and their sons Barnaby, four, and Laurence, two.

THE PROPERTY A double-fronted Victorian house in southwest London. The ground floor has a living room and playroom, with a glass-sided walkway and stairs down to the open-plan family room and kitchen-diner (plus utility room and WC). There are three bedrooms (one en suite), a family bathroom and study on the first floor, with the master suite on the top floor.

KITCHEN

Slender gaps in the wood risers let slivers of sunlight shine through the suspended glass-clad staircase, adding to the feeling of lightness and space.

GET THE LOOK The kitchen is by Smallbone and is painted in Farrow & Ball's Light Blue estate eggshell. This is a Samsung fridge. The bar stools are from Ligne Roset. These are Tom Dixon's Beat pendants. The floor tiles are from European Heritage.

OUTSIDE/GARDEN

The slice of garden is cleverly designed in receding sections – decking, seating, hedge, lawn and a raised bed – which creates the illusion of depth, as if it fades into the distance. 'The planting makes the best possible use of the small and unusual space,' says Andy. The white concrete retaining wall has been customised into a tropical bench.

GET THE LOOK The bench is covered in Palma fabric by Michael Szell at Christopher Farr Cloth. The flamingos are from Graham and Green.

Discovering a new angle sums up Cheryl and Andy's approach to their London home, where they have peeled back the folds of its formal Victorian cloak to reveal something sharper and altogether more intriguing. Their masterstroke was slicing decisively through the house's traditional core, inserting sections of glass and crisp lines, so that the once buttoned-up 19th-century space now flows with renewed energy.

Today, the house is anything but predictable; much of its dynamism stemming from contrasts, whether brights against pale shades or traditional vs modern materials. But this is a couple who admit to quite different tastes. 'My favourite artist is Modigliani – very measured and classically composed,' says Cheryl. 'Andy's? Jackson Pollock paint splatters, Damien Hurst skulls – anything that challenges rather than soothes,' she says, laughing.

But it's the contrasting styles of architecture that pack the biggest punch – and succeed in solving an architectural puzzle that has lain at the heart of this Fulham home since it was built. It's not obvious at first, but the floor plan of this handsome double-fronted house is more trapezium than rectangle – probably the result of bickering Victorian builders when the land was divided up. The result is that the house's two exterior side walls gently angle inwards, finally meeting in a point at the end of the cake-slice of garden.

Given his work as a property developer, Andy was unfazed by this. 'I'm used to finding solutions to unusual problems and breathing new life into old buildings,' he says. Cheryl, a surgeon by profession, was less blasé. 'Frankly, the irregular angles were a bit scary and had already put off several other buyers. They made the house seem more complicated,' she says.

But neither Cheryl nor Andy is in the habit of shirking a challenge. And Andy's philosophy – to work with the problem rather than trying to disguise it – has paid off. 'In the end, the wall angles were the driving force behind the house's redesign and architecture,' he says. The tapered, almost triangular floor spaces seemed to be crying out for a new central staircase. Which, in turn, naturally divided the lower-ground floor into two zones – kitchen-diner and family room.

The angle-oriented design also feeds into the details. The marble island in the centre of the classic Smallbone kitchen was made so that each long side is parallel with its exterior wall – making a subtler mini trapezium. 'If we'd gone for a standard rectangle, it would have looked clumsy and drawn even more attention to the disparity,' says Andy. Instead, the lines of the island and the walls all recede into a vanishing point in the garden, like an exercise in classical perspective drawing. 'Smallbone were great – and totally adaptable,' says Andy.

Sometimes, the meeting of old and new is near-seamless – the tiles laid in the newly widened hallway have a touch of Victoriana, but are in punchier hues than the gentlefolk of SW6 would have seen in the 1880s. But glass is the mainstay of this light-enhancing renovation, used for vast picture windows on each landing, full-height bifolds and balustrades. Andy's boldest move was removing two walls and a floor over the family room and replacing it with, well – air. The glass balcony and balustrades over the double-height atrium mean it's now 'a dramatic dining space, where light can pass into every corner,' says Cheryl. 'The boys "get" what they can and can't do – no throwing and no climbing are firm house rules,' she adds. 'To be honest, they're more into planting big smeary kisses on the glass.'

A sense of fun in their family-friendly space is also augmented by pops of neon, flocks of pink flamingos and Christian Lacroix butterflies. Upstairs, colour is also worked into geometric fabrics, rugs and throws that reference the sharp lines and angles that have been a part of the house's DNA since it was built.

In a corner of the family room, there's a set of framed photos that show 'before' and 'after' images of the house. The previous lower-ground floor is unrecognisable. 'It was dank and dark, with tiny frosted windows,' says Cheryl. 'The only things that glittered were layers of tin foil stuck on the walls – I don't want to think about what the previous owners were up to...'

Whatever fun and games went on in this house before, it's Cheryl and Andy's gleaming, glass-enhanced update that really blows us away.

HALLWAY ↑

The central hallway was widened and the couple laid floor tiles that are part-modern, part-Victorian. 'The pattern harks back to the house's roots, but the shades are crisper, less gloomy,' says Andy. Walls and a section of floor were removed to create a double-height atrium, emphasised by the cluster of pendants.

GET THE LOOK The tiles are from London Mosaic.

DINING AREA

Cheryl wanted a blown-glass chandelier for this double-height space; Andy wanted the top hats. 'On this occasion, I won, but we both like the humour they add,' says Andy.

GET THE LOOK The chairs were reupholstered in Butterfly Parade by Christian Lacroix for Designers Guild. The table is vintage. These are Jeeves and Wooster pendants by Jake Phipps for Innermost. The pink skull ornament is from Graham and Green.

← LIVING ROOM

'This space recalls life BC – Before Children,' says Cheryl, smiling. 'We try to keep it as a grown-up space for chats and late-night cognacs. It also shows our different tastes in art. I brought the reproduction Modigliani to the marriage; Andy brought the abstract painting over the fireplace.' Bold colours pull the couple's look together.

GET THE LOOK The painting above the fireplace is by Tim Garwood. The Modigliani is an old reproduction. The glass knot on the mantelpiece is by William Yeoward. The vase is by Jonathan Adler. The chairs are from George Smith and the footstool is from Arlo & Jacob. The sofa is from Christopher Wray with a cushion from Designers Guild. The rug is by Suzanne Sharp for The Rug Company.

STUDY ↑

Bespoke shelving makes a feature of the unusual angles at play in the study. 'We've worked with the esoteric shapes of the rooms, rather than trying to disguise them,' says Andy.

GET THE LOOK The shelving is by Darna. Orchid sells tall Chinese urns.

Q Recently, we had a new boiler fitted in the kitchen, which meant some pipework had to be routed through a few of the wall cabinets – this can now be seen through their glazed doors. Could you suggest any way to hide it, as boxing the pipes in will look unsightly too.

Jess and Simon, Lincoln

A Boxing in pipes generally looks worse, as it tends to make whatever you're trying to hide stand out even more. So I'd suggest having a full false panel installed to cover the whole of the back of the cabinet, with shelving cut to a new depth. Fitting panels often means you can easily extend your splashback and decorative features, such as ceramic tiling, into the cabinets, right.

Q Can you help us with a problem we have with our wood burner? The plaster wall and paint behind it have started to crack and we need to know how to repair it.

Kamila, Exeter

A Guidelines state you should install a stove approx 60cm away from plaster walls and about 8cm from an exposed brick wall, so I think yours has been put in too close. Paints at this proximity can't cope with the heat and will crack and peel up. Your easiest option is to install a heat-resistant board, which will need to be screwed to the wall, rather than using any adhesive. Promat Supalux from Promat (promat.co.uk) is a very good product, which is mainly used for fire- and heater-wall linings. This is available online at insulationshop.co for £32.62 per sq m. The only paints that can tolerate higher temperatures on the fire-resistant board are lime washes, so try Beeck Insil silicate paint from the Cornish Lime Company (cornishlime.co.uk), approx £70 for 5l.

Q Our living area is decorated in whites, but we have lots of colour on the walls, as we collect original pop art prints and contemporary street art. We have two large sofas in a light grey, but we're looking to source a set of three footstools we can fit into the scheme without it feeling cluttered.

Jackie, Leeds

A Rather than add more neutral lumps into the room, you could go the other way and inject some functional pop art pieces into the space. Check out the fantastical Allsorts ottomans, right, from Davison Highley (davisonhighley.co.uk), which cost approx £860 each.

An unusual 'suite' of furniture from Davison Highley

Fitting a false wall into a glazed kitchen cabinet can hide unseemly pipework

Q I have a lovely, modernist-style console table in my hall, which I think came from Heal's during the Eighties. But its oak top has become very marked and I want to find a piece of leather to cover it. Where can I buy some?

Laura, London

A As you're in the capital, I'd make a trip to JT Batchelor (jtbatchelor.co.uk), because there you'll find every leather, fitting and tool needed to get what you want made, plus the smell of the leather in the shop is amazing! You'll probably have to buy a full hide Blinds (crosbyblinds.co.uk) both stock Sunway wood-woven Roman blinds, which are made from sustainable sources. Also try Joss Graham (jossgraham.com) for traditional Chik blinds from India, which come strung in an array of unusual patterns.

Q I've recently refurbished my kitchen and I'm looking to source long, L-shaped finger pulls for the cupboards and units. My preference is to have them either in white, black or polished chrome. Ikea sells them in brushed

'There are loads of "woven wood" blinds that come in a variety of material combinations' for the sizes you want cut out and it will cost approx £90, but you should have enough left over to cut a few extra place mats and coasters too.

Q I'm looking to introduce texture to a monochrome kitchen and have seen some quality bamboo blinds in magazines, but I can't seem to source them locally. Any ideas?

Janet, Stockport

A If you want raw natural texture, then there are loads of beautiful 'woven wood' options that come in a variety of material combinations. English Blinds (englishblinds.co.uk) and Crosby aluminium, but that isn't the look I want. Could you suggest some quality alternatives?

Caroline, Ross-on-Wye

A Sometimes you'll find handles you like, but when they're not available in the finish you'd prefer, you may have to go bespoke – and be prepared to pay the extra! For metal finishes, talk to A & H Brass (ahbrass.co.uk), which has a huge selection of hardware, but also offers many different finishes as well as a custom service for reclaimed pieces. If a colour finish is needed, then powder coating is an option if you have a fair number to get done – try Armourtex (armourtextld.co.uk) for this. For off-the-shelf L drawer and cabinet pulls, More Handles (morehandles.co.uk) has a few good options priced at under £10 each.

CHOOSE UNEXPECTED SHAPES AND COLOURS

A freestanding bath always makes a stylish centrepiece. Up the ante by picking one with an avant-garde touch, such as these striking modern feet.

'Introducing coloured ceramics is a bold challenge to more than 30 years of monochrome bathrooms,' says Justin Homewood, director and founder of The Water Monopoly. 'Fifties shades, modern metal finishes and the curves and lines of classic design are a great way to pep up the usual traditional approach.'

GET THE LOOK This is the Rockwell Bath in Vitrite (a stone and mineral composite) with Blue feet, £5,880; and Rockwell wall-mounted bath taps with Blue ceramic crossheads, £768, by The Water Monopoly.

FOLLOW PATTERN TRENDS... ON THE CEILING

A tiled or panelled ceiling injects a shot of drama into a room, bringing instant impact to even the simplest of spaces. For a particularly of-the-moment look, choose chevron or parquet-inspired patterns. Lightweight tile backer boards will make installation easier by providing a stable, strong base. They're also suitable for the heaviest of wall tiles, such as marble or stone.

GET THE LOOK These are Artist Palette wood-effect porcelain tiles, available in 60 colours, from £90 per sq m for Natural Colours; and £230 per sq m for all other colours, by The Stone & Ceramic Warehouse.

HIGHLIGHT DECORATIVE WOODWORK

Although architectural features are usually finished in cool white, decorating them in a bolder colour really makes them sing. A stronger shade is ideal for highlighting finials, corning and cladding and adding visual weight to an entrance. 'Georgian homes often featured dark painted wood to mimic exotic hardwoods,' says David Mottershead, MD of Little Greene. 'Chocolate indicated wealth and status, as it was more expensive to produce than many other colours.'

GET THE LOOK Try Little Greene's Chocolate intelligent eggshell, £53 for 2.5l. For similar flooring, see the Oak Old White pre-oiled engineered boards, £68.33 per sq m, by The Natural Wood Floor Company.

FUNK UP A CLASSIC KITCHEN

Shaker-style furniture is inherently timeless, but it can be given a modern twist with striking metallic details. Chrome, nickel and stainless steel aren't the obvious materials of choice for kitchens that they once were, so opt for brass or gold bar-style handles to give a luxurious, modern touch that doesn't overwhelm the overall traditional look. While mixing metallics works in other rooms, stick with the warm metal theme and continue on the brassware, accessories and appliances.

GET THE LOOK This design was created by Smitten Studio for approx £5,770. The cabinetry is painted in Farrow & Ball's Pigeon estate eggshell, £53 for 2.5l.

For similar handles, try Armac Martin Rotunda pull handles in Polished Brass, from £52.54 each, from More Handles. For a tap like this, check out the Parthian C-spout tap in Gold 4341IG, £436.32, by Perrin & Rowe.

FIVE WAYS TO UPDATE YOUR KITCHEN

1 Change your splashback. This is an easy way to add colour, texture or personality to your kitchen. Make sure your material is in keeping with the style of the cabinetry and building, but don't be shy about introducing a new material into the scheme – as long as the colour works tonally, it should speak to the other elements.

2 Upgrade to natural stone worktops to add an extra layer of luxe. Granite may be the go-to, but the trend is moving towards marbles, slates and limestones – many of which offer a more individual aesthetic, with different finishes, such as finely riven, leathered, brushed, honed and polished, which personalises your design further.

3 Swap a tired kitchen tap for one with a beautifully designed shape or elegant finish to update your sink area. 'A copper tap will sit well in almost any kitchen,' says Sam Shaw, head designer and director at Sustainable Kitchens. 'It's a classic item, but copper is a long-lasting material with a beautifully evolving patina that complements other natural materials used for work surfaces or accent pieces.'

4 Display shelving is a kitchen staple, but rather than let what's on show fade into the background, add some lighting above or below to turn it into a feature. Strategically placed LED strip lighting is discreet and can be quickly retro-fitted.

5 Choose timber cabinetry and refreshing your kitchen will be as simple as sanding down, slicking on a suitable primer and following with your favourite paint shade for a new look. Try adding handles in unusual materials, such as glass, resin or copper.

GIVE STAIRS A CONTEMPORARY TREATMENT

A stairway might not be the most obvious place to use bold colour, but banisters, risers and posts and even the runner can be transformed with paint or unusual fabrics. Swap a runner or carpet for layered patterned woven rugs or mats fixed firmly in place with gripper strips, carpet glue, staples or tacks, or try painting on a design. If you plan to do this yourself, ensure it looks smart by using masking tape and protecting with clear, water-based flooring lacquer to prevent yellowing over time.

GET THE LOOK For similar rugs, try Myakka's kilims, from £49.95 each. For a similar pink paint, try Fuchsia Lily mixing gloss, £35.18 for 2.5l, by Dulux.

GET THE LOOK To achieve something similar to this simple but striking effect, use FrogTape Gloss & Satin masking tape, £6.99, Homebase, with Wimborne White; Bone; and Drawing Room Blue estate eggshells, each £58 for 2.5l, Farrow & Ball. Finish with Manns Extra Tough Pro lacquer, £77.39 for 5l, Wood Finishes Direct.

'Asymmetry is a great modern twist that brings movement and life to a classic stair runner'

ROGER OATES OF ROGER OATES FLOORS & FABRICS

BOOST PANELLING WITH PAINT EFFECTS

Striking paintwork, such as the vertical stripes here, can transform ornate panelling from fusty to funky. Using subtle changes in colour adds definition to walls, while the clean lines of a stripe are a stylish progression from the ombré trend. Ideal for emphasising the height of the room, this technique can also be used in low-ceilinged schemes to give a sense of vertical space.

Conversely, horizontal stripes would add a cosy feel.

GET THE LOOK Dulux offers a range of similar shades in Paint Mixing matt emulsion, from £24.49 for 2.5l.

'A trompe l'oeil wallpaper can give a sense of depth and convey luxury or casual vintage. And it's not expensive considering its effects'

ANDREW MARTIN

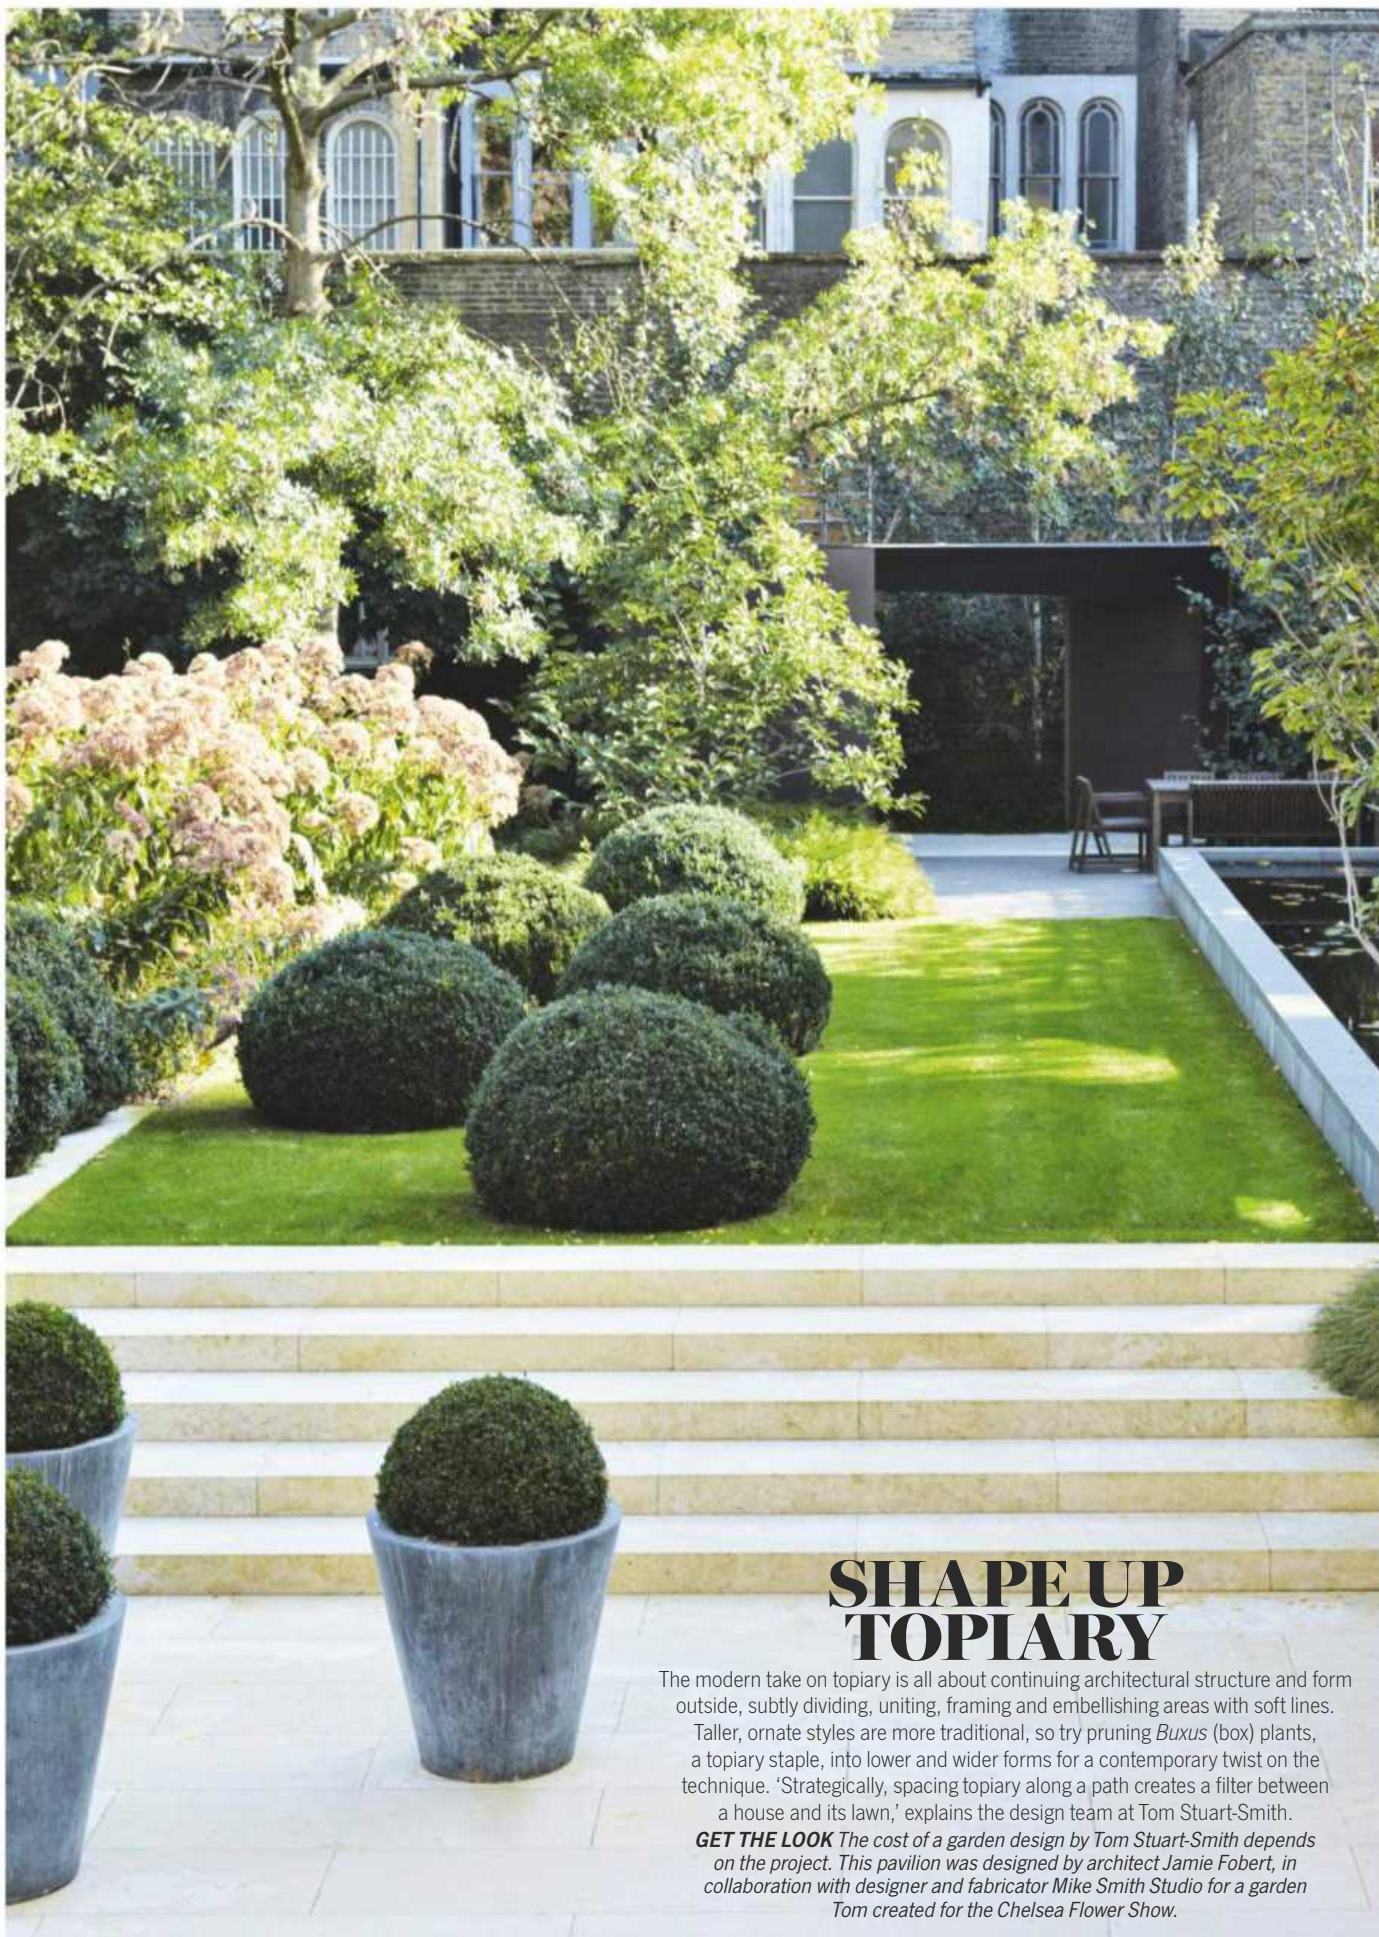

DECORATE WITH VISUAL EFFECTS

Trompe l'oeil painting will bring attention to previously pared-back spaces, such as this pale grey detailing that adds character to these doors and walls. The trick is to keep the effect subtle – whole vistas and faux-windows can look dated, so stick to delicately veined stone effects, authentic architectural details and decorative motifs that appear to play with light and shade.

GET THE LOOK Decorative Effects could create a similar trompe l'oeil door and panel design; the daily rate for an artist is £350, not including material and sundry costs.

FIVE VISUAL TRICKS TO ADD IMPACT

- 1 Striped configurations, such as a herringbone pattern, give the illusion of a larger space and direct the eye through the room. Switch from a horizontal line to a vertical layout to highlight key feature areas.
- 2 High-contrast details give smaller pieces of furniture more visual weight. Try re-covering favourite items in pale fabric, then add piping in a dark or bright shade to 'outline' it.
- 3 Don't consign pattern to a solitary feature wall. Repeat prints in different shades or use a similar colourway, but with different scales to create a distinction between fabrics, walls and furniture.
- 4 Use lighting to enlarge a narrow space. A series of pendant lights, as opposed to a single fitting, will give the illusion of length and space, while wall or floor lights add depth. Be sure to choose light fittings that suit the size of the room – too large and the space will feel cramped and too bright.
- 5 Colour can create visual balance in an awkwardly shaped room. Deeper tones advance, so use them to make walls appear closer, while paler tones recede, so you can subtly modify each wall to make a disordered space seem more roomy.

SHAPE UP TOPIARY

The modern take on topiary is all about continuing architectural structure and form outside, subtly dividing, uniting, framing and embellishing areas with soft lines.

Taller, ornate styles are more traditional, so try pruning Buxus (box) plants, a topiary staple, into lower and wider forms for a contemporary twist on the technique. 'Strategically, spacing topiary along a path creates a filter between a house and its lawn,' explains the design team at Tom Stuart-Smith.

GET THE LOOK The cost of a garden design by Tom Stuart-Smith depends on the project. This pavilion was designed by architect Jamie Fobert, in collaboration with designer and fabricator Mike Smith Studio for a garden Tom created for the Chelsea Flower Show.

MAKE A FOCAL POINT WITH PIPES

Mix old-world style with a contemporary trend and the result is sure to be spectacular. Exuding the same utilitarian luxury that gives exposed filament light bulbs their charm, undisguised copper piping adds an industrial edge and a sense of history. As well as creating raw appeal, pipes can help frame parts of a room, turning each into a separate focal point and contrasting beautifully with simple white walls and panelling.

GET THE LOOK Interior designer Oliver Burns could create a similar exposed pipework design – from approx £10,000.

GET THE LOOK The design below is by American stylist and designer Smitten Studio and cost approx £3,200. For a basin like these, try the Cooke & Lewis square countertop basin, £143; and for similar wall tiles, see Padstow white ceramic wall tiles, £60 per sq m, all B&Q. The 14415W-3-CP Purist 3-hole wall-mounted basin mixers with cross handles in Polished Gold, £849, are by Kohler. For a similar mirror, try the Watertec 600, £44, at Bathstore.

SET METRO TILES IN A MODERN PATTERN

Simple metro tiles can be used to create a wall that commands attention when laid in an unexpected way instead of a conventional brick-style configuration. Herringbone, diagonal and crosshatch layouts prevent the tiles from receding into the background, while also giving the impression of a larger tiled area and creating greater contrast between the walls and your furniture. Choose flooring in a matching shade and it'll also make the space feel less cluttered, even if you opt for a different format.

GET THE LOOK For similar wall tiles, try Baker Street glazed ceramic tiles in Coal, available in seven colours, from £49.84 per sq m, by Johnson Tiles. Karol's Lignum drawer unit designed by Giancarlo Piretti is similar, from £1,776, at CP Hart.

Paris rocks

A spate of new hotel openings makes the French capital the hottest city this season

Words – Sarah Baldwin

We all know about the beauty of Paris – gorgeous architecture, world-class museums and oh-so stylish shops. Not to mention its incredible restaurants and delicious pâtisseries. But over the past year, we've noticed something afoot in the City of Light. As well as new concept stores and bars, design hotels are cropping up apace, so there's more choice than ever for the aesthete.

We've picked three properties that not only have design cred by the bucketload, but also a rich history to match: The Peninsula, a grand, old-school hotel given a chic new lease of life; The Molitor, a former public swimming pool that's now an achingly well-crafted hotel; and the stunning Les Bains, once a raging nightclub frequented by the likes of Mick Jagger and Kate Moss. Whichever you choose, as Audrey said (in Sabrina), Paris is always a good idea...

THE MOLITOR, 16th arrondissement

THE LOWDOWN An Art Deco lido that's now a hotel and members' club.

BEST FOR Design lovers who are partial to a dip.

The Molitor lido has been a 16th-arrondissement establishment since it opened in 1929, when it quickly became a hot spot for bathing beauties (the bikini made its first appearance here). The architectural masterpiece fell into disrepair during the Eighties, but has now been reincarnated as a high-end hotel, sports club and Clarins spa, complete with a restaurant and rooftop bar. Once likened to a cruise liner, the structure is an exemplar of Deco design. The sensitive restoration includes original stained-glass porthole windows and mosaic floors, teamed with concrete walls and exposed industrial fittings for a modern twist. Twenties-style furniture and icy-blue accents complete the look of the public spaces, while the 104 rooms and 20 suites boast sleek monochromes. Our tip? Book a room overlooking the outdoor pool. Be sure to pack your bathers in winter; for the softies, there's a 33m indoor piscine too.

BOOK IT Double rooms from £158 (mgallery.com).

LES BAINS, 3rd arrondissement

THE LOWDOWN Five-star luxury on the site of a former famed nightclub.
BEST FOR Night owls looking to stay in a hipster part of town.

The Haussmann-era building that houses this 39-room hotel has a wonderfully colourful story. A few steps from the Pompidou Centre in the vibrant Marais district, it used to be the city's most famous thermal bathhouse before it was transformed into the most notorious nightclub of the Seventies – Paris's answer to NYC's Studio 54, with Andy Warhol, David Bowie, Mick Jagger, Karl Lagerfeld and Kate Moss as regulars. The club closed in 2010, but it wasn't long before the new owner, film-maker Jean-Pierre Marois, created the chic boutique hotel it is today. The bar/restaurant remains a highlight – a moody, blood-red space, dripping with references to its heritage, from floor tiles that chime with the bathhouse theme to framed fluoro posters of Eighties gigs. French elegance best describes the bedrooms, which, with their distressed carpets and walls, have a timeless appeal. Will the hotel have as starry a guest list as the club had? We reckon so...

BOOK IT Double rooms from approx £210 (designhotels.com).

THE PENINSULA, 16th arrondissement

THE LOWDOWN Old-school extravagance near the Arc de Triomphe.

BEST FOR Glamourpusses eager to retrace the steps of Picasso or Proust.

Pack your finest for a trip to The Peninsula – the moment you set foot in the wonderfully OTT lobby, with its bespoke installation of 800 hand-blown crystal leaves, you know you're in the land of luxe. One of Paris's original grandes dames, it first opened as the Hotel Majestic in 1908 and played host to high society for several decades (including Stravinsky, Proust, Joyce and Picasso) before falling into government hands during the Second World War. Restoration to its former glory took six years and 40,000 pieces of gold leaf. Every detail was painstakingly considered and each room features both sumptuous interiors in greys and creams and super-smart technology – there are even personal nail-varnish dryers in the dressing rooms. Secure one of the suites with a private roof garden or courtyard and you'll really be living la vie en rose...

BOOK IT Double rooms from approx £570 a night (paris.peninsula.com).

- Hydrangea seemannii is a rare and hardy evergreen climbing plant.
- Its dark-green serrated leaves will cover walls and fences, providing the ideal backdrop to the creamy, lacecap flowers. Unlike other climbing Hydrangeas, seemannii won't drop its leaves in winter, so provides year-long interest.
- In late spring, egg-shaped buds appear and beautiful clusters of flowers emerge. These measure up to 18cm in size and will last until autumn.
- Height and spread is 4m plus, but can be pruned to required size.
- Supplied in 9cm pots in 14 days at the perfect time to plant.

- Hydrangea macrophylla 'Dark Angel' boasts black, veined leaves, which add contrast to the garden. These emerge in spring and perfectly frame the blooms.
- In May, distinctively coloured flowers emerge from lilac buds and begin to decorate the hardy rounded shrubs. The pompom heads intensify in colour with age, offering more than six months of colour and successional flowering.
- Hydrangea 'Dark Angel' is a compact plant that is perfect for pots, easy to grow and unfussy about location.
- Height 1.2m and spread 60-80cm • Supplied in 10.5cm pots in 14 days.

Let them EAT CAKE!

Achieve hero status in a single bake with Donna Hay's sponge show stoppers

Photography – Anson Smart
Styling – Donna Hay

Classic Victoria sponge cake

Serves 6

- 100g plain flour
 - ½ teaspoon baking powder
 - 4 eggs
 - 110g caster sugar
 - 75g unsalted butter, melted and cooled
 - 125ml single cream
 - icing sugar, for dusting
- FOR THE STRAWBERRY JAM
- 500g strawberries, hulled and roughly chopped
 - 110g caster sugar
 - 1 vanilla bean, split and seeds scraped
 - 1 tablespoon white balsamic vinegar

- Preheat the oven to 180°C/gas mark 4. Lightly grease 2 x 20cm round shallow cake tins and line them with non-stick baking paper.
- To make the strawberry jam, heat a large non-stick frying pan over a medium heat. Add the strawberries, sugar and vanilla bean and seeds and stir until the strawberries start to soften and release liquid. Bring to the boil and cook, stirring occasionally, for 14-18 minutes, or until thickened. Add the vinegar and stir well to combine. Remove from the heat, discarding the vanilla bean and allow to cool completely. Refrigerate until cold.
- Sift the flour and baking powder three times and set aside.
- Place the eggs and sugar in an electric mixer and whisk on a high speed for 12-15 minutes, or until pale, thick and tripled in volume.

- Sift half the flour mixture over the egg mixture and, using a large metal spoon, gently fold to combine. Repeat with the remaining flour. Add the butter and gently fold to combine.
- Divide the mixture between the tins and gently smooth the tops with a palette knife. Bake for 14-18 minutes, or until the sponges are springy to the touch and come away from the sides of the tins. Remove the cakes from the tins and cool completely on a wire rack covered with a tea towel.
- Whisk the cream until soft peaks form. Spread one cake with the jam, top with the cream and sandwich with the remaining cake. Dust with icing sugar to serve.

Mini rose-water sponge cakes ↓

Makes 6

- 100g plain flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- 4 eggs
- 110g caster sugar
- 1½ teaspoons rose-water
- 75g unsalted butter, melted and cooled
- 125ml single cream
- ½ tablespoon icing sugar, sifted
- ¼ teaspoon rose-water, extra
- 2 tablespoons chopped pistachios
- 110g pomegranate seeds
- vanilla-flavoured Persian fairy floss, to serve (available at the Foodhall in Selfridges)

- Preheat the oven to 180°C/gas mark 4. Line the base of 6 x 180ml lightly greased, round loose-bottomed cake tins with non-stick baking paper.
- Sift the flour and baking powder three times and set aside.
- Place the eggs, sugar and rose-water in an electric mixer and whisk on a high speed for 12-15 minutes, or until pale, thick and tripled in volume. Sift half the flour mixture over the egg mixture and, using a large metal spoon, gently fold to combine. Repeat with the remaining flour. Add the butter and gently fold to combine.
- Divide the mixture between the tins and bake for 16-18 minutes, or until the sponges are springy to the touch and come away from the sides of the tins. Remove the cakes from the tins and cool completely on a wire rack covered with a tea towel.
- Place the cream, icing sugar and extra rose-water in a bowl and whisk until soft peaks form.
- Divide the cream between the cakes and top with the pistachio, pomegranate and fairy floss to serve.

Chocolate sponge layer cake with vanilla mascarpone cream

Serves 8

- 75g plain flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 2 tablespoons cocoa
- 5 eggs
- 110g caster sugar
- 50g unsalted butter, melted and cooled
- 500g mascarpone
- 125ml single cream
- 40g icing sugar, sifted
- 1 teaspoon vanilla bean paste
- 100g raspberries
- 100g strawberries
- 100g golden or red cherries
- icing sugar, extra, for dusting

- Preheat the oven to 180°C/gas mark 4. Lightly grease 2 x 20cm shallow round cake tins and line them with non-stick baking paper.
- Sift the flour, baking powder and cocoa three times and set aside.
- Place the eggs and sugar in an electric mixer and whisk on a high speed for 12-15 minutes, or until pale, thick and tripled in volume. Sift half the flour mixture over the egg mixture and, using a large metal spoon, gently fold to combine. Repeat with the remaining flour. Add the butter and fold to combine.
- Divide the mixture between the tins and gently smooth the tops with a palette knife. Bake for 14-18 minutes, or until the sponges are springy to the touch and come away from the sides of the tins. Remove the cakes from the tins and cool completely on a wire rack covered with a tea towel.
- Put the mascarpone, cream, icing sugar and vanilla bean paste in a bowl and whisk until soft peaks form. Using a serrated knife, cut the cakes in half horizontally. Spread the bottom layer with the mascarpone mixture, top with another cake layer and repeat with the remaining layers, finishing with a layer of mascarpone.
- Top with the raspberries, strawberries and cherries and dust with the icing sugar to serve.

Almond Swiss roll with white chocolate cream and raspberries

Serves 6-8

- 75g plain flour
 - ½ teaspoon baking powder
 - 60g ground almonds
 - 4 eggs
 - 110g caster sugar
 - 50g unsalted butter, melted and cooled
 - 2 tablespoons caster sugar, extra
 - 80g raspberries, roughly torn
- FOR THE WHITE CHOCOLATE CREAM
- 250ml single cream
 - 90g white chocolate, finely chopped

- Preheat the oven to 180°C/gas mark 4. Lightly grease a 36 x 24cm Swiss roll tin and line it with non-stick baking paper.
- Sift the flour, baking powder and ground almond three times and set aside.
- Place the eggs and sugar in an electric mixer and whisk on a high speed for 12-15 minutes, or until pale, thick and tripled in volume. Sift half the flour mixture over the egg mixture and, using a large metal spoon, gently fold to combine. Repeat with the remaining flour. Add the butter and gently fold to combine. Pour the mixture into the tin and gently smooth the top with a palette knife. Bake for 8-9 minutes, or until just cooked.
- While the sponge is baking, put a large piece of non-stick baking paper on a worktop and sprinkle evenly with the extra caster sugar. Turn the sponge out on to the prepared paper. Remove the non-stick baking paper from the top of the cooked cake. Using the sprinkled baking paper, roll up the sponge, starting from one of the long sides. Cover with a tea towel and allow to cool completely.
- To make the white chocolate cream, place half the cream in a small saucepan over a medium heat and bring to the boil. Remove from the heat, add the chocolate and allow to stand for 5 minutes. Stir to combine and refrigerate until cold.
- Put the remaining cream in a bowl and whisk until soft peaks form. Add the cooled white chocolate mixture and whisk until it has thickened.
- Carefully unroll the sponge cake and spread with the white chocolate cream. Sprinkle with the raspberries and roll to enclose. Trim the edges before serving.

Lemon and elderflower sponge cakes ↓

Makes 6

- 100g plain flour
 - ½ teaspoon baking powder
 - 4 eggs
 - 110g caster sugar
 - 1 tablespoon finely grated lemon zest
 - 75g unsalted butter, melted and cooled
 - 80ml single cream
 - 2 tablespoons store-bought lemon curd
- FOR THE ELDERFLOWER GLAZE
- 240g icing sugar, sifted
 - 1 tablespoon elderflower cordial
 - 2½ teaspoons hot water

- Preheat the oven to 180°C/gas mark 4. Line the base of 6 x 180ml lightly greased, round loose-bottomed cake tins with non-stick baking paper.
- Sift the flour and baking powder three times and set aside.
- Place the eggs, sugar and lemon zest in an electric mixer and whisk on a high speed for 12-15 minutes, or until pale, thick and tripled in volume. Sift half the flour mixture over the egg mixture and, using a large metal spoon, gently fold to combine. Repeat with the remaining flour. Add the butter and gently fold to combine.
- Divide the mixture between the tins and bake for 15-18 minutes, or until the sponges are springy to the touch and come away from the sides of the tins. Remove the cakes from the tins and cool completely on a wire rack covered with a tea towel.
- Using a serrated knife, halve the cakes horizontally and set aside. Whisk the cream until stiff peaks form and spread the bottom halves of the cake with the cream. Place 1 teaspoon of the lemon curd in the centre of each cake and sandwich with the remaining halves.
- To make the elderflower glaze, put the icing sugar, cordial and water in a bowl and stir well to combine. Drizzle the cakes with the glaze and allow to set before serving.

Vanilla sponge cake with cream and passion fruit

Serves 6

- 100g plain flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- 4 eggs
- 110g caster sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla bean paste
- 75g unsalted butter, melted and cooled
- 120g sour cream
- 125ml single cream
- 2 tablespoons icing sugar, sifted
- 80ml passion-fruit pulp (approx 4 passion fruit)

- Preheat the oven to 180°C/gas mark 4. Line 2 x 20cm lightly greased, shallow round cake tins with non-stick baking paper.
- Sift the flour and baking powder three times and set aside.
- Place the eggs, sugar and vanilla bean paste in an electric mixer and whisk on a high speed for 12-15 minutes, or until pale, thick and tripled in volume. Sift half the flour mixture over the egg mixture and, using a large metal spoon, gently fold to combine. Repeat with the remaining flour. Add the butter and gently fold to combine.
- Divide the mixture between the tins and gently smooth the tops with a palette knife. Bake for 14-18 minutes, or until the sponges are springy to the touch and come away from the sides of the tins. Remove the cakes from the tins and cool completely on a wire rack covered with a tea towel.
- Put the sour cream, cream and icing sugar in a bowl and whisk until soft peaks form. Spread one cake with half the cream mixture and drizzle with half the passion-fruit pulp. Sandwich with the remaining cake and top with the remaining cream and passion fruit to serve.
